Towards an Ethics’ Reform in Human Medical Research: Israeli and American Perspectives

8:30-9:00 Gathering
9:00-9:20 Greetings

PANEL 1
Moderator: Prof. Karen Avraham, Vice Dean, The Sackler Faculty of Medicine, Tel Aviv University

9:30-10:30 Prof. Ezekiel J. Emanuel, Department of Medical Ethics and Health Policy, University of Pennsylvania
Towards an Ethics’ Reform in Human Research: American Perspectives

10:30-11:10 Dr. Orna Diav-Citrin, Senior Physician in Charge of the Israeli Teratology Information Service, Ministry of Health
Observational studies – Do We Need an IRB Approval? A Lesson from the Perspective of a Clinical Teratologist

11:10-11:50 Dr. Gil Siegal, Director, Center for Health Law & Bioethics, Faculty of Law, Ono Academic College
What Can Be gained from Reframing Human Research as a Collective Action Problem?

12:00-12:20 Coffee Break

PANEL 2
Moderator: Prof. Liat Lerner-Geva, Director, Division of research of maternal and child’s health, Gertner Institute and Public Health School, Faculty of Medicine, Tel Aviv University

12:20-13:00 Rabbi Yuval Cherlow, Rosh Yeshiva Amit Orot Shaul, Head of the Ethics Department of Zohar Rabbis
The Risk in the Present Human Research as seen by the Public: The Necessary Informed Consent Process

13:40-13:40 Dr. Daniel Katz, Head, Bristol-Myers-Squibb, Israel and Chairman of the Israeli Pharmacologists Society
“The Future is Here” - New Era in Oncology Early Phase Studies, Regulatory & Ethical Aspects

13:40-14:20 Prof. Oren Froy, Chairman, the supreme Ethical Committee, The Hebrew University, Jerusalem
Helsinki or IRB – That is the Question

14:30-15:30 Lunch Break

15:30-16:30 PANEL 3
Moderator: Dr. Michal Rol, Deputy Director General for R&D Sourasky Medical Center
Free Gathering and Discussion with Prof. Emanuel

Scientific Committee:
Prof. Zvi Borochowitz, Chairman, The Israeli National Committee for Human Medical Research
Prof. Shai Lavi, Director of the Edmond J. Safra Center for Ethics and the Van Leer Institute in Jerusalem

For Registration: safracen@post.tau.ac.il | No registration fee is required