Career Path:

In recent years, the financial world has undergone a major transformation. Technological, social, and regulatory changes are reshaping financial models and creating new products and services such as digital currencies, robo-advisory, social trading, and crowdfunding.

The Finance and Capital Markets specialization introduces students to these innovations, familiarizes them with emerging financial tools, and provides the knowledge needed to thrive in a rapidly evolving industry.

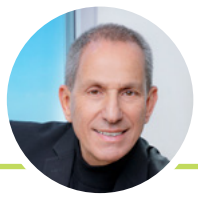
Program Overview: Theory, Practice, and Impact

This Master's program in Finance and Capital Markets spans five trimesters and provides a strong foundation in finance, investments, and global markets.

Combining academic knowledge with practical experience, the program prepares students for careers in financial institutions, consulting firms, and international organizations.

Three Great Reasons to Study at Ono International School:

1. Applied Academy: Ono's approach is to combine theory with practical tools for real-world application.
2. Personalized Learning Environment: Benefit from small class sizes, individualized academic guidance, and hands-on training in our advanced simulation center.
3. Tailored for Olim: A specialized track combining academics, Ulpan, and community support for an easier transition into Israeli society.



The program provides essential skills in investment management, capital markets, financial decision-making, and the integration of financial technology. Students gain practical experience in areas such as trading, portfolio management, banking, and risk management, taught by leading lecturers and industry experts."
